

BMWf Privacy Policy

What Personally Identifiable Information is Collected

Bob Marshall Wilderness Foundation members that donate at www.bmwf.org/donate , or mail a donation, and individuals that sign up to receive BMWf's e-communications voluntarily provide us with contact information (such as name, address, and e-mail address). We may use this information for specific, limited purposes. You may always "opt out," either now or at any time in the future, if you do not wish to receive our messages.

How Your Information May Be Used

We use your personal information to provide the following services: to send e-mail and newsletters; to answer your requests; to process your membership donations. You may choose to opt out at any time, which will cease all communications from us, either by unsubscribing from emails via Constant Contact, or by contacting BMWf staff. Bob Marshall Wilderness Foundation reviews the general geographic location of visitors to its website but does not collect or store information specific to individual visitors. This information allows us to determine which of our programs are the most popular and which regions of the country are accessing the information so we can better serve our users'.

Information Sharing

The Bob Marshall Wilderness Foundation does not provide, sell, or rent email addresses or postal addresses to anyone outside of the organization.

Information Protection

Postal and e-mail addresses are kept in the BMWf donor database. This information is not available to the public and is kept on a network secure computer. BMWf processes credit cards through verified and secure third parties such as Square, Paypal, and Stripe and does not retain credit card information. All credit card information is erased, deleted, or destroyed following its intended, one time use.

Changes to the Policy

BMWf may amend this privacy policy from time to time; please review it periodically. We maintain the option to modify this policy at any time by electronic notice posted on our website. Your continued use of our website after the date that such notices are posted will be deemed to be your agreement to the changed terms.